GRADUATION

One 'Four' the Ages

Class of 2014 takes a bow

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

The sun was shining down on graduates as they filed into the Music Circus on Saturday, June 14 to celebrate the culmination of their school years. It was a picture-perfect day for a ceremony under the Big Top.

The boys in their blue robes and the girls in white, clutching yellow roses, were the perfect accompaniment for the sunny blue sky dotted with just a few clouds.

The 101 members of the Cohasset High School Class of 2014 appropriately dubbed themselves "One 'Four' the Ages," playing off of their graduation year.

ELDER AFFAIRS

Volunteer hours adding up

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Can you put a price on volunteering?

Cohasset's Elder Affairs presented a mock check of $194,818.45 to the Board of Selectmen recognizing the volunteers that keep elder services going.

Elder Affairs Director Coral Grande explained that the dollar amount on the check represents the cumulation of all of the hours volunteers contributed to Elder Affairs in Fiscal Year 2013, based on the dollar amount per hour designated for 21 volunteer positions.

The check also recognizes the 11,100 service hours put in by 215 volunteers.

Grande said that the department presented a similar

TOWN BYLAW EXPLAINED

Door-to-door solicitors must register with CPD

What: The Cohasset bylaw regulating door-to-door solicitors, adopted seven years ago and approved by the Attorney General's Office, has been effective in limiting the number of solicitors who come to town with the intention of getting in and quickly getting out, police said. It has also provided some comfort to residents that the people who are soliciting have background checks performed by the police department.

Bylaw at a glance

Solicitors are required to register with the police, where they can apply for a $25 license.

Solicitors are required to wear a badge, issued by the police, that includes their name and photograph.

Solicitors have to provide police with their name, address, date of birth and height, weight and eye color, social security number; dates and times of canvassing activities; name and address of employer; and a brief description of the purposes of the solicitation.

• The licenses are good for a period to be determined by the police chief up to one year and are non-transferable.

Violation: Any willful violation of a town bylaw, such as the solicitation bylaw, is an arrestable offense. The bylaw requires that those selling magazines, for example, must first register with the police department.

Exceptions: Exceptions to the bylaw are town, state or federal officers or employees on official business; minors under 18, unless in connection with a commercial activity; candidates for public office or campaign workers; those promoting political causes; and those soliciting for charitable organizations, unless those solicitors are paid.

Note: Police recently issued 12 solicitor's licenses to Next Step Living, a home energy solutions company, which will be canvassing the town.

Four-car chain reaction following burial service

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Chain-reaction

A 71-year-old West Roxbury woman was cited following a chain-reaction accident on North Main Street at the lights at Forest Avenue on Monday (June 9) around 11:43 a.m.

Police said all the cars involved were traveling from a burial service at Woodside Cemetery to the Lightkeepers Residence when the mishap occurred.

The first car in line was 2007 Ford sedan, operated by a 43-year-old Hyde Park man, who had stopped at the lights. The next car was a 2006 Toyota, operated by a 36-year-old Dorchester man. And behind that car was a 2014 Volkswagen Passat, operated by a 60-year-old Milton woman.

The Chevrolet, operated by the W. Roxbury woman, hit the back of the VW pushing it into the Toyota which then hit the Ford sedan. All the cars had multiple passengers, police said. The W. Roxbury woman was cited for failure to use caution and her car was towed due to heavy front-end damage, police said. There were no reported injuries.

Two-car crash

At 12:57 p.m. on Monday (June 9), police responded to a two-vehicle accident on King Street (Route 3A) and Schofield Road. Police said a 24-year-old Cohasset woman in a 2001 Lincoln LS sedan pulled out of Scofield Road to head north in front of a 2002 GMC Envoy, operated by a 50-year-old Marshfield woman. The impact of the crash sent both vehicles careening into the ditch on the northbound side of the highway.

Both vehicles were towed. The Cohasset woman was transported by mutual aid ambulance from Norwell to the hospital with non-life-threatening injuries. She was cited for failure to yield to oncoming traffic. The Marshfield woman's husband arrived to pick her up, police said.

Two-car crash

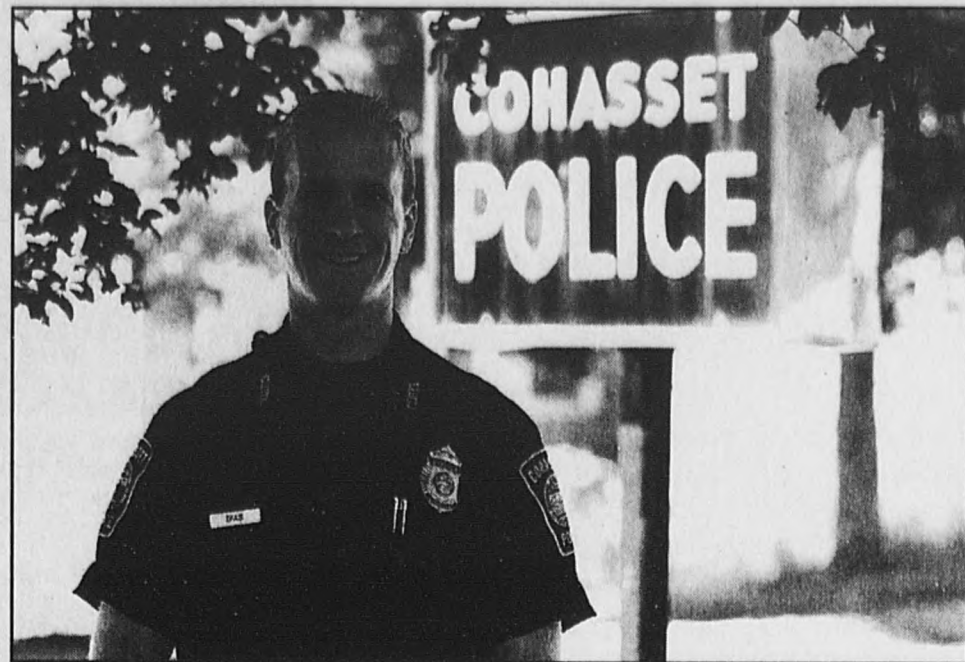

At 8:44 a.m. on Tuesday (June 10), police were called to a two-vehicle crash at the lights at Stop & Shop. A 2012 Subaru Impreza, operated by a 23-year-old Scituate man, was headed north when he rear-ended a 2002 Honda Odyssey van, operated by a 42-year-old Scituate woman, who had stopped at the lights.

Narcan kit used to reverse overdose

Police said a 9-1-1 call came in about 1 p.m. on Saturday (June 14) for a 30-year-old woman who was found unresponsive inside her bedroom in a neighborhood off Route 3A. Officer Chris Dias went to the home while the emergency dispatch center kept the victim's mother on the telephone line.

Dias deployed his Narcan kit, administered the dose into the victim's nostrils, and she began to breathe again. Officer Dan Williams then arrived on scene with paramedics from the Cohasset Fire Department. The victim was transported to South Shore Hospital in Weymouth.

"It's unfortunate that we need to carry this opiate reversal drug, but it 100 percent saved a life this weekend," Acting Chief William Quigley said. "Officer Dias administered the Narcan and the efforts of Norfolk District Attorney Michael Morrissey have to be commended for taking the bull by the horns and putting this in every police car in Norfolk County — it was very forward thinking."

Since the first of the year, there have been four heroin overdoses in Cohasset; one of which was a fatality. This was the first time that Cohasset police had the Narcan kit available for use. Cohasset Officer Paul Wilson, a certified trainer through Norfolk DA's office, conducts in-house training for all the officers, Quigley said.

The Subaru had to be towed and the Scituate man was cited for following too closely. There were no reported injuries and the other vehicle was drivable, police said.

Car towed

A 21-year-old Cohasset man is being summonsed to court for driving without being licensed and failure to stop at a stop sign following a traffic stop on Tuesday (June 10) around 12:15 p.m.

An officer on patrol observed the white 2006 Infiniti G35X the man was driving fail to stop at the stop sign when coming out of Crocker Lane to head south on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A). The officer pulled the Infiniti over and checks through the Registry of Motor Vehicles revealed the operator's license had expired on his birthday last February. His car was towed.

Car towed

Faulty brake lights led to a traffic stop and summons to court for a 49-year-old Scituate man operating a red 2004 Volkswagen Jetta. The Jetta was headed south on Route 3A in the area of Stop & Shop on Tuesday (June 10) around 6:30 p.m. when an officer observed that the VW did not have brake lights when it slowed to turn right onto upper King Street. The officer followed the vehicle that rolled through the stop sign and King and Pond streets before pulling into the water department driveway where the officer pulled the car over.

Checks through the Registry of Motor Vehicles revealed the man's license had expired in April. His car was towed and he is being summonsed on the charges of unlicensed operation, defective equipment (brake lights), and failure to stop at a stop sign, police said.

ID theft

A 32-year-old town employee went to police headquarters on Wednesday (June 11) to report he had received an electric bill in his name, including his middle initial, for a property in Watertown, which he does not own. Investigation through the electric company showed that someone using his name had opened an account for that property back in October 2010 and had stopped paying the bill last January. The employee was provided with an identity theft packet and told to contact the credit bureau. The matter is still being investigated.

Fatal crash

Cohasset police and fire received a 9-1-1 call at 6:23 p.m. on Wednesday (June 11) about a motorcycle vs. car accident on Border Street. When they arrived a bystander, who identified himself as a medical doctor, was administering CPR to the 27-year-old Scituate man who had been driving the motorcycle. He was taken by Cohasset ambulance to South Shore Hospital. Hingham police provided an escort to clear traffic through their town. The young man succumbed to his injuries, police said. Cohasset police assisted at the scene by shutting down Border Street.

Cohasset police said it appears the motorcycle hit a car that was backing out of a driveway on Border Street just over the line in Scituate and it appears that speed was a factor. Massachusetts State Police detectives assigned to the Plymouth County District Attorney's Office have assumed primary responsibility for the case and will be working with members of the Scituate Police Department to finalize the investigation.

Lost

A 70-year-old man who is new to town and lives in the Avalon complex was walking his dog across Route 3A on Thursday morning (June 12) when he got lost in the Rocky Lane area. A caller reported that an older gentleman with a dog was walking around the cul de sac and appeared disoriented.

Police said there was somewhat of a language barrier but they were able to determine that he lived in Avalon and got in touch with his wife who came and picked up him and the dog.

Hit & runs

There were two reported hit & run accidents involving parked cars during the Arts Festival over the weekend. A Cohasset woman reported that someone had backed into her 1998 Toyota sedan in the post office parking lot around 3:27 p.m. on Saturday (June 14). There was significant damage to the bumper and trunk, police said.

At about 2 p.m. on Sunday (June 15), a Scituate woman, whose EMC Envoy had been parked on Ripley Road near Tower Lane, returned to her car to find the driver's side mirror on the ground next to the vehicle. There was a note left from a witness to the accident providing a partial plate number, description of the green Toyota Sequoia and the driver. According to the witness, the passenger-side mirror on the Sequoia was also damaged but the driver, a shirtless young man, did not stop. Police are trying to locate the Sequoia.

Litter dump

A 27-year-old Cohasset man is being summonsed to court for illegal dumping after he was again spotted dumping yard debris off Cushing Road in the Ellms Meadow well field, police said. The latest complaint came in at 7:34 p.m. on Saturday (June 14). The man had been warned over the previous two weeks. Police have photos of the debris and a witness.

In a related mishap, the police 2013 Chevrolet Tahoe SUV that responded to the scene backed into a low-hanging branch on Cushing Road that shattered the tailgate window. The police vehicle was out of service until 10 a.m. Monday after repairs were made. The window cost $420 to replace.

Domestic

A 48-year-old Cohasset man was arrested and charged with domestic assault after his 70-year-old mother called police saying he was verbally harassing her and putting her in fear on Sunday afternoon (June 15). Police responded to the home where the son was uncooperative and irate. A small struggle with police ensued when the officers tried to put the man into handcuffs.

He is currently being held at the Plymouth County House of Correction due to a parole violation on unrelated charges, police said.

GRADUATION

members and friends watched the processional to "Pomp and Circumstance," played by the CHS concert band, then rose to listen to the senior class chorus belt out "The Star-Spangled Banner" and recite the Pledge of Allegiance, led by Student Council President Samuel Curatola.

Senior Class Vice President Matthew MacCormack had the honor of giving the ceremony's welcoming address. Traditionally given by the Class President, MacCormack explained that he was given the duty in place of President Tim Cavanaro, who was also named Salutatorian "and resident underachiever," joked MacCormack, and would be giving his speech later in the ceremony.

The vice president said that before high school, he was afraid to speak publicly, but that is just of many things that changed over the years, as his classmates had undoubtedly changed.

"We all have exited the doors of 143 Pond Street as different people than the ones that entered, and we all have grown and established our own identities," he said.

MacCormack touched on how blessed he and his classmates have been to grow up and attend school in a small, coastal town like Cohasset.

"While we may not be consumed with the sensation of how lucky we are on a day-to-day basis, today is a day that we really should come to grips with our good fortune," he said. "Where else in the world can you go to school where you know every face, and get hands-on, personal instruction from teachers, all in a town in which you can watch a pink sunrise glint over the surface of the ocean?"

Acknowledging that living in such a tight-knit community can be "claustrophobic" at times, MacCormack made it clear that leaving home would be difficult for many students, but a necessary step.

"From this point on, we will disperse in different, eclectic directions. Some of us will travel, go into the military or straight to the workforce. Others will continue their education at universities and colleges next year. There are certainly some of us out there that don't know what the heck we're going to do in the future.

"But that's ok," MacCormack continued. "Because in Cohasset, as they say, 'Even if you don't know what you're doing, everyone else does.'"

Superintendent Barbara Cataldo delivered the keynote address, thanking the graduates' families for patiently awaiting the results of the boys' lacrosse

"A New Start" by Matthew MacCormack

For now, goodbye to bells and classes
And welcome gowns and golden sashes
We one hundred, futures entwined
Go boldly forward, leaving behind

All of our days at the school of Cohasset
The torch flickers still, it is now time to pass it
Now we move on, and promptly hereafter
In all of our stories, we start a new chapter

Done with the last, we turn to new pages
The Class of 2014, one-for the ages!

Matthew MacCormack served as the CHS senior class vice president. Since president Tim Cavanaro addressed his fellow graduates as Valedictorian last Saturday, MacCormack was asked to deliver the president's speech. MacCormack was also the Cohasset Mariner's "Life at CHS" columnist for the 2013-2014 school year.

"Where else in the world can you go to school where you know every face, and get hands-on, personal instruction from teachers, all in a town in which you can watch a pink sunrise glint over the surface of the ocean?"

finals to learn what time graduation would start on Saturday. The start time of 1:30 p.m. was finalized on Wednesday night that week, once the schools found out that the lacrosse team would play against Dover-Sherborn on Saturday night at 7:30 at Boston University – a game that Cohasset won.

Cataldo said it was important to "allow the seniors to graduate as a class."

The superintendent wished the lacrosse team well and sang the praises of Cohasset students throughout her speech, remarking that she was particularly proud of the seniors for being "talented critical thinkers" who are "passionate about society" and "not afraid to express that passion."

Cataldo said it was a commentary written by Curatola in the Cohasset Mariner that made her realize what an intelligent, vocal group of seniors were graduating this year, impressed with the class president's ability to display a "complex understanding of the world" and "write with passion, optimism and clarity."

The superintendent said reading this commentary taught her a lesson about the senior class as individuals.

"I have learned that you are poised to take the next step in your future," Cataldo said. "You are ready to leave Cohasset and explore this vast world."

During her congratulatory remarks, Principal Carolyn Connolly encouraged graduates to be true to themselves throughout their lives, saying it is "the greatest challenge you will face."

"Be loyal to yourselves and follow your instincts," Connolly urged, quoting Epictetus: "Decide who you would be then do what you must do."

Cavanaro also shared a famous quote during the Salutatorian's speech, this one from Albert Einstein: "Life is like riding a bicycle; to keep your balance one must keep moving," encouraging his fellow graduates to step outside their comfort zones as they embark into the future. "We will have new experiences and new friends that will change our lives."

Valedictorian Alexandros Deligiannidis (featured in "Picture This," page 2) took a moment to laud his fellow seniors for their accomplishments as a class, listing off athletic, academic and creative triumphs.

The last speaker before diplomas were received and hats were launched into the air, Deligiannidis reminded his classmates to reflect on all the hard work that led them to this moment.

"It is important to realize that none of these accomplishments were promised," he said. "They were only realized by our class due to perseverance, persistence, and ambition. No amount of proselytization by me could instill in you these values; they are already embedded within us all."

Thanking all of the teachers, parents, siblings, family members and friends who contributed to the graduates' successes, the valedictorian urged his classmates to take all that they've learned with them.

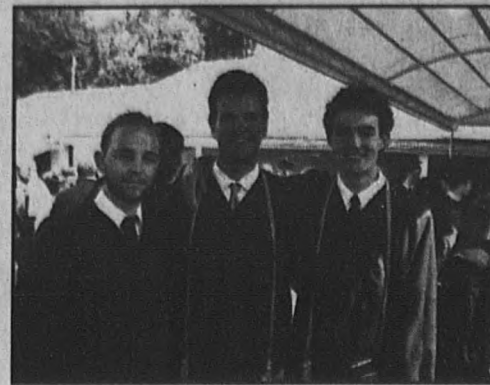

"I hope only that the aspects of character – hard work, tenacity, and determination – that pushed our class to the pinnacle of achievement during these four years will persist in years to come," said Deligiannidis. "Certainly these qualities, should they remain untarnished, will help us impact the world in the most positive manner possible."

AROUND TOWN

Cavanaro, Benson awarded Pilgrim Arena scholarships

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Summer!

Hi Cohasset, how are you all doing this week with the end of school here (or almost here) for our students, young and old? Congratulations to all the students who have worked hard this past year, made friends, learned so many new things and overall, had a great year. The kick-off date is here for the official start of summer 2014. Please make sure that while you are enjoying the warm, hopefully sunny and action packed days you may have planned, to cover the kiddos in sunscreen, use bug spray and keep your little munchkins hydrated (you too while you are at it). Water safety is crucial and also, take the time to talk with your children about the summer rules for your home and, for those times you won't be with them. Bike riding, playground times, trips to the beach or pool are all so much fun but without rules and limits, that fun can be dashed immediately.

I wanted to also encourage everyone to take some time to get know your local businesses, venues, non-profits etc that we have all over town. When you are planning your shopping or activities for the summer and beyond, try really hard to include the businesses that may have what you are looking for. Farmers Markets are around and have such wonderful and tasty items for sale. Holly Hill Farm, The Paul Pratt Library, Cohasset Recreation Department and many other spots around town have sales, specials and events happening...stop in, say hello and do a bit of shopping too. It takes a village...

Scholarships

Congratulations to Cohasset High School graduates, Timothy Cavanaro and Derek Benson, who were recently among 12 local students awarded scholarships from the Pilgrim Skating Arena in Hingham at the arena's 41st Scholarship Awards Ceremony on Friday June 6.

Each 2014 scholarship is valued at $10,000 totaling $120,000. Over the years, the arena has given 483 scholarships totaling in excess of $1,302,500.

The scholarship money will be put to good use as Tim is headed to Harvard College and Derek will attend Tufts University!

Holly Hill

Holly Hill Farm is a wonderful resource here in Cohasset. They have a number of programs coming up in the next several weeks and would like for everyone to be able to see them and think about taking part in one or many of them. Please keep this contact info in a spot that you remember and you can call or email, along with checking the updated site of ten. Holly Hill Farm, 236 Jerusalem Road, 781-383-6565 (www.hollyhillfarm.org). Check your Mariner each week for their programs and events!

Farmers market

The Friends of the Cohasset Farmers Market is offering a hand and a special place at their Table this summer to any Cohasset Boosters Club, Charitable Organization or Scouts looking to raise awareness and support of their cause. The Farmers Market season will run every Thursday, through October 16th, from 2 to 6 pm. For more details, please contact Michele Hubley at friends@cohassetfarmersmarket.com or tel. 617-699-6526.

That is the news for this week Cohasset. Send in all your news, photos and celebration info to me no later than Tuesdays by 5 pm.

Just an FYI. We receive dean's list and honors notices from many colleges and private schools, but not all. If your son or daughter has earned recognition, please share that news directly with us!

We also LOVE new baby announcements with photos if possible. Need birth date, weight, length, names of siblings, parents and grandparents. Emailed photos are fine but glossies can be dropped off at Tedeschi's in the village in our Mariner drop box. EMAIL: aroundtowncohasset@yahoo.com

LIFE AT CHS

Summing up a great school year

ASHLEY CURRAN

I can't believe another school year has come and almost gone (aside from finals week). The juniors and underclassmen all watched as the senior class "set sail" on May 23 and we enviously await our turn to break for the summer. Soon the humidity and heat that comes with class in the month of June will be a problem for September. And with a major sigh of relief, finals will be over. Only a few more defining days until June 23 when the students of Cohasset Public Schools are set free onto the town to enjoy JJ's for lunch and the Nona's truck for dinner; all while spending the day at the beach. Not that Cohasset High School is in anyway a miserable place to be but let's be honest; Sandy Beach can entice the strongest of wills with its glittering sand and salty air.

However desirable summer may seem, this past week in particular was instrumental in CHS history. The boys lacrosse team won the Division III State Championship with a 10-9 lead over competitor, Dover-Sherborn. Students and faculty alike came out to show their support for the Skippers at Boston University's prestigious Nickerson Field. After the win, students rushed the field in order to embrace their fellow classmates and celebrate the conquest of the night. In addition to the major success the boys lacrosse team earned this season, the 2013-2014 school year was nothing short of exemplary. The boy's football team made it to the Superbowl at Gillette Stadium for the first time, a State Championship in women's singles tennis was won for a third time, and countless other teams made it into the playoffs of their seasons. With that being said, this year has been filled with triumph in not only athletics, but academics as well. With a new group of students inducted into the National Honor Society and MCAS scores rising, I am confident in calling 2013-2014 a successful school year.

I would be amiss to continue and not recognize Matthew McCormack who has been an instrumental writer of this column this entire year. Not only would I like to thank him for his contribution, but also congratulate him in his pursuit of journalism at Northeastern University. His "Life at CHS" stories found its way into my family's Sunday morning breakfast topics where my dad awkwardly always asked me if what he wrote about school was true (FYI, it always was). I hope to be just as strong a writer as Matthew in carrying on the legacy of him, and writers before him. In addition to beginning of my career as a writer for The Mariner, I am a student as well as an athlete and love showing my spirit for my school more than anything else. I plan to incorporate my school pride into my goals for this column. I am fortunate enough to not only pursue that passion for writing in this particular column, but also in my recent acceptance of a co-editor-in-chief position at the school newspaper, The Spinnaker.

I'm assuming you readers want to know less about me and more about what students will be doing for the final moments at CHS this week! Other than exams and end of class surveys, some students are scrambling at the last moment to make up work missed, while others can relax and wait for arrival of summer. At some point this week there will be an assembly in which awards for both athletics and academics will be celebrated and handed out in order to reward the hard work and dedication of a typical Cohasset student.

I predict Monday, the 23rd will involve many students receiving report cards, saying farewell to their favorite teachers for short months of separation, and probably culminating at a overcrowding at the Feng Shui buffet.

I am extremely excited to be writing for The Mariner this coming year and will see everyone in the fall. Until then, enjoy the summer months!

Ashley Curran is finishing up her junior year at Cohasset High School. She is the new Life at CHS columnist. Her column runs weekly during the school year.

GIMME SHELTER

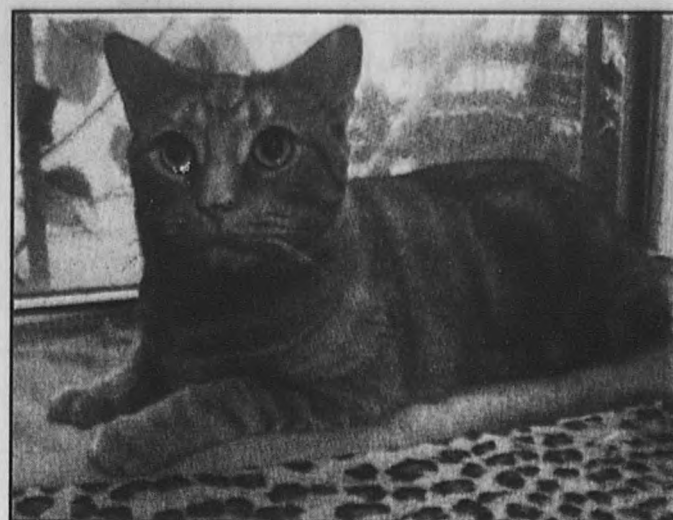

You will flip over Flip!

CASEY FREDETTE

At 14 pounds, 6-year-old Flip has lots of life and love to give. This orange tiger has lived his entire life indoors with a loving family. Every shelter cat has its own, often sad, story. Flip is no exception; he was happily living his life with his longtime owner, safe and comfortable in "his" home. Unfortunately his owner was not well, suffering from Multiple Sclerosis, a degenerative nervous system disease. Over time as the owner worsened, it became increasingly dangerous to have the cat underfoot. Finally the difficult decision was made to move Flip to Hull Seaside Animal Rescue.

All too often our three-plus year old cats are overlooked; considered too old. At 6-years-old Flip isn't even middle aged yet! He has plenty of life in him. Flip is much calmer than a kitten, enjoying time spent on a windowsill. His generally calm nature doesn't mean he doesn't still enjoy playtime — Flip appreciates wand toys and laser light play. He's even game for interacting with all the other cats. Flip is by no means an old cat; he is a very healthy, mature boy. With an adult cat you get to skip the kitten phase. No shelf clearing exploration, no middle of the night acrobatics across your bed, just a heap of affection and lots of sleep and lap time. Kittens have many perks, but people often overlook the perks that accompany an adult cat. Regularly, cats over 2-years-old are left in shelters far too long while kittens leave within a fraction of the time.

Flip is hoping to be one of the lucky adults... one who doesn't have to make his home in the shelter for many months. He is hoping to be able to find his final home and family and to be able to take up residence on a comfortable windowsill. Flip has a lot to give; he's just waiting for his chance.

Considering giving Flip his chance? Come meet him! It's easy: open hours are Monday 6:30-7:30 p.m. and Saturdays 2-3 p.m. Looking for more information on Flip or any of our other cats or kittens? Call Judy, adoption coordinator at 781-534-4902 to learn more or to schedule a visit.

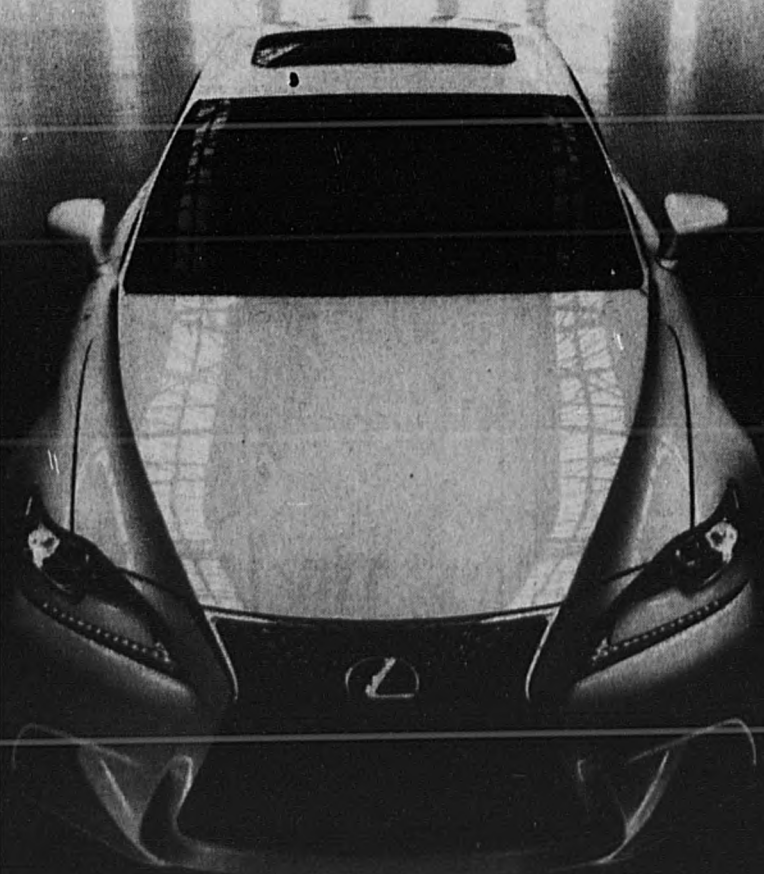

Kittens
Kittens! There's no doubt, it is kitten season again, and we are getting calls nearly every day. As you might imagine the cost of caring for dozens of kittens is huge. Have you been considering donating or looking for a way to help? Please consider donating kitten food, both wet and dry. Our kittens are voracious eaters and we go through an enormous amount of kitten food every week. When you add up all of our kittens in our shelter and the many kittens in our foster homes, it is a surprisingly large number, and there is no end in sight. Kitten season can last into the fall and in that time we can care for as many as 100 kittens or more. Our kittens are adorable and tons of fun to play with, come visit them and think about bringing a bag of kitten food or a case of wet food!

Our next low cost spay day is July 8th. Call Casey, shelter manager at 781-925-3121 or email hsar@verizon.net to reserve a space for your cat. Space is limited so book your spot today on the Animal Rescue League's Spay Waggin'. The $100 fee includes: physical exam, surgery, rabies and distemper vaccine, and flea treatment.

Last call! Gimme Shelter is this weekend. Come out June 21st from 7 to 11 p.m. and join us at Raffael's Restaurant at South Shore Country Club, Hingham. The night will feature music, raffles, a silent auction and Raffael's own buffet. Tickets are available online www.hsar.org or at the door. We hope to see you there!

Casey Fredette is the shelter manager of Hull Seaside Animal Rescue.

RECIPE CORNER

Tossed Spring Greens with Classic Vinaigrette

With the abundance of spring greens available, it's easy to put together a delicious salad. Your salad mix might include arugula, romaine and salad bowl lettuces, baby spinach, chard, baby kale, bok choy and other greens. Use 1 — 1 1/4 pounds of greens for 8-10 servings. For smaller salads, add just enough dressing to lightly coat the greens. Refrigerate leftover dressing and shake well before using again.

In a jar, combine:

- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
- 1 small shallot (about 2 tablespoons) minced
- 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Freshly ground pepper to taste
- Shake vigorously in jar.

OUR VIEW

Hats on, please!

Most journalists dream about writing the great American novel someday – but our fantasy is to open up a hat shop – with every possible style, color and size.

For some reason since the 1940s and 1950s hats have gone out of style. Once a critical part of fashion, today few people in our country – male or female – wear hats unless they are at a baseball game!

Case in point: on a recent trip to Naples, Fla., we observed that hat-wearers were in the minority despite the brilliant sunshine and cloudless sky.

Another example, on a recent walk around our neighborhood – several neighbors said hello while also mentioning that we were wearing a hat – one with a wide brim all-around. When we replied that our hat could help prevent skin cancer, they were silent.

While watching the U.S. Open golf tournament last weekend, we were amazed to see so few hats on the heads of the North Carolina spectators.

One has to wonder why we, in large numbers, have not heard the message about skin cancer. Spending time in the sun, whether on the beach, at the pool, on a boat, in your yard, playing golf, or out for a walk without a hat is foolish. Baseball caps, while better than no hat at all, cannot do the job. A wide-brimmed hat is needed!

Cohasset Mariner columnist Elle Kennedy writes from “down under” while living in Australia for two years due to her father’s job. Elle’s columns are informative and full of fun. But what really caught our attention was when Elle wrote that schoolchildren in Australia have to wear hats when outside playing since Australia has the highest rate of skin cancer in the world.

We went to official Australian government website (skincancer.gov.au) and found the following simple tips to protect yourself from skin cancer:

- Seek shade
- Wear sun protective clothing that covers as much of your body as possible
- Put on a broad-brimmed hat that shades your face, neck and ears
- Wear wrap-around sunglasses
- Apply SPF30+ or higher broad spectrum water resistant sunscreen liberally to clean, dry skin, at least 20 minutes before being exposed to the sun, and reapply at least every two hours when outdoors.

These tips and more are on display at every dermatologist’s office on the South Shore and beyond.

Here are some important skin cancer facts:

- Basal cell carcinoma (BCC) is the most common form of skin cancer; an estimated 2.8 million are diagnosed annually in the United States. BCCs are rarely fatal, but can be highly disfiguring if allowed to grow.
- One in five Americans will develop skin cancer in the course of a lifetime.
- About 90 percent of non-melanoma skin cancers are associated with exposure to ultraviolet (UV) radiation from the sun.

Like many of you – we are sun lovers. But the days of basking in the sun without regard for the consequences should be over.

A big step in keeping skin cancer at bay is to wear a wide-brimmed hat.

We hope to see more hats on the heads of Cohasset folks this summer!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

‘Chemical’ lawns and Commercial Fertilizers

On June 23, 2014 at 7 p.m. the Cohasset Stormwater Advisory Committee (“Committee”) will meet in the basement meeting room in Town Hall to consider “eutrophication” also known as “hypertrophication.”

Hypertrophication is defined as “the ecosystem response to the addition of artificial or natural substances, such as nitrates and phosphates, through fertilizers or sewage, to an aquatic system.” (Wikipedia)

Simply stated; the Committee will be looking at the effects fertilizers may be having on our waterways and resources. There may be a threshold question of whether land treated with fertilizers may contribute “harmful” material through storm water to our water resources, and the Committee will address that first.

Do commercial fertilizing companies such as Tru-Green, formerly “Chem-Lawn” and Scotts use products or methods that may be affecting Town property, such as ponds, streams, harbors, etc? If so, what are the effects? These are the kind of questions the Committee will be considering.

The meeting is open to all, and we hope that anyone with information on or interest in the issue will find some time to meet with us that evening.

I have invited both Tru-Green and Scotts to attend the meeting, but have received no response as of June 18, 2014.

On behalf of the Stormwater Advisory Committee

THE HEDLUND REPORT

Not a lot of democracy

BOB HEDLUND

When Lord Acton famously wrote "Power tends to corrupt and absolute power corrupts absolutely" to fellow historian and scholar Mandell Creighton in 1887, he was referring to the kings and popes of his time who ruled with casual disregard for what was truly best for their constituencies. Yet he might as well have been writing about the Democratic Party here in contemporary Massachusetts.

Over the last few years, we have seen a startling decrease in the willingness of the majority party to make the tough decisions they were elected to make.

We saw it in 2009, when most state legislators accepted an automatic pay increase at a time where public- and private-sector workers across Massachusetts were struggling to keep their jobs in the face of recession. We saw it in 2012, when Senate President Therese Murray declared that the state budget did not constitute a "money bill," so she could avoid important debate on a number of taxes and fees.

We saw it in 2013, when the Legislature voted to automatically increase the statewide gas tax each year, so that they never again have to face the public scrutiny of passing a gas tax increase year after year. We saw it again at the start of April this year, when the House of Representatives voted along party lines that any debate on local aid, school funding or welfare reform can and will be ruled out of order during the House budget debate.

In fact, we see it nearly every week when the 27 joint committees in the Legislature vote to send countless bills "to study" — effectively killing them without having to have their names tied to a "yes" or a "no" vote on difficult issues. Over the past number of years, this has included more than 40 different bills aimed at reforming Chapter 40B. The one-party monopoly on Beacon Hill has allowed for the majority party to manipulate the rules to serve their purposes and for them to avoid all the responsibility that comes with taking a stance on any truly controversial issue.

Why should they worry, though? Incumbency rates here in Massachusetts mirror the sky-high rates seen at the federal level. The Senate has not seen an incumbent lose since Sonia Chang-Diaz defeated the scandal-plagued Dianne Wilkerson in 2008. Even then, we simply swapped one Democrat for another.

The state has one of the most lopsided state legislatures in the nation; both the 101-person difference between the House party caucuses and the 32-person difference between the Senate party caucuses represent the largest differentials in the country. This one-party rule does no good for the people of Massachusetts.

Debate on the House and Senate floors has simply become a charade, with the majority party allowing it to take place only until the point where it starts to make them uncomfortable. Voters need to hold their elected officials accountable for their avoidance of responsibility; those who are unwilling to even debate the difficult issues that face legislators on Beacon Hill do not belong in office. These officials are selling out their constituents for their own personal and political gain.

Unlike the kings and popes of Lord Acton's time, our state legislators have to face the ballot box every two years.

Republican State Sen. Robert Hedlund represents the eight-town Plymouth-Norfolk District that includes Weymouth, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Cohasset, Scituate, Marshfield and Duxbury.

GROWING ON THE FARM

Pitching in for Father Bill's

JON BELBER

Oh what a little rain and sun will do. In walking by the rocky space at the farm where the old tennis court used to be and is now dedicated for the farm pantry garden, I could not help but notice the weeds among the kale, like the thorns among the roses. The tattered fence, which will soon receive help from an Eagle Scout candidate, currently serves a pretty good purpose in keeping out the deer, rabbits and woodchucks. Plenty of sunshine reaches this prime spot however, and the deluge of rain also makes for excellent growth, both wanted and unwanted.

The weeds are high, as are the young kale plants, chard seedlings and recently sown carrots. Some weeds have caught up to the garlic, which, planted last October, are about a month away from being carefully pulled for green garlic and to dry for fall. Like the farm fields that the farmers tend, these small, oblong, rectangular and even boxed beds and growing spaces feature a variety of crops, plants, veggies and flowers. Diversity hopefully keeps away some unintelligent pests and insects. The rotation of crops (not planting one crop in the same spot every year) also keeps the farmer and the yield one step ahead. But there is a need to remove the old pea trellis and step into the garden, work to be completed.

It is named the farm pantry garden as the majority of the food grown and harvested there is destined for Father Bill's Place in Quincy. Father Bill's is a home and a help for folks seeking to get back into work and gain stability and independence. Some fresh, healthy vegetables, with organic practices, can help the chef and the recipients, along with the other donations that people and organizations provide. When the volunteering high schoolers come for a week at the farm, they will work alongside the Holly Hill farmers and work to prepare the harvest for transport to Quincy.

Like any dedicated growing space, there needs constant attention. The high schoolers are not yet here to do the weeding, cultivating and staking. Right now on the farm, there are many younger farmers between the ages of 3 and 8 who are walking by looking for worms, making compost, exploring open meadows, trekking to the ice pond or simply feeding the chickens some grassy weeds. The summer programs for young children are thriving at the farm and they are happily discovering the joys of nature, while staying together and walking the paths. I suppose these young kids could navigate around a growing bed of potatoes, but perhaps only to inadvertently be unable to distinguish a weed from a spud plant or tall grass from a beet green. So soon the middle schoolers will be released from the rigors of school to maybe engage in the satisfying rigors of weeding. Some high schoolers will come in a fortnight for a week of work. In the meanwhile and the immediate future, I am inclined to jump in for a half hour here and there of tending, perhaps after the little ones have gone off for a nap.

There is also a fast approaching sustainable garden tour on June 28th, and though it will feature gardens in Scituate and Cohasset, there will also be a chance to visit some dedicated farm gardens at Holly Hill Farm. For it is at the farm where the example ought to be set. A model for discovery for one of any age, exploration by many and a well-heeled garden for a good cause.

Jon Belber is a Scituate resident and the education director at Holly Hill Farm in Cohasset. He teaches students and adults about organic gardening and farming. His column appears twice monthly in the Mariner. He can be reached by email at jbelber-hollyhill@hotmail.com. For information on upcoming programs at Holly Hill, visit www.hollyhillfarm.org.

STATEHOUSE NEWS

$300K for downtown parking

State Rep. Garrett Bradley, D-Hingham, joined by his colleagues in the House, June 12, approved comprehensive economic development and jobs legislation. The following is from Rep. Bradley's office.

The bill aims to further strengthen Massachusetts' innovation industries and position the state as a global leader both economically and culturally through forward-looking solutions including a focus on emerging industries, investments in workforce development and education, and promoting targeted regional growth.

"I am pleased that the bill included my amendment providing $300,000 for Cohasset to make downtown parking improvements," Bradley said. "The legislation also aims to promote private sector investment, strengthen the economy to make Massachusetts more competitive, support the manufacturing sector, and provide workforce training."

The legislation invests $1.5 million in MassCAN, a public-private partnership that requires matching investments dollar-for-dollar, for the development and implementation of a program to establish widespread, progressive computer science education in public schools. It creates and provides $2 million for the Big Data Innovation & Workforce Fund to promote the use of big data and analytics industries, provide tools for related career development and explore how analytics can help address public transportation, energy and public health issues.

The bill also invests $2 million in the Talent Pipeline initiative, a program that has won national praise since its creation through the 2012 economic development law. The program encourages students and young innovators to get a head start on their futures by matching stipends for interns at innovation start-ups, and providing mentoring opportunities for new entrepreneurs.

Recognizing the role that start-ups and early-growth companies have in revitalizing the economy, this bill includes numerous provisions to support the innovation ecosystem including:

- Builds on a program allowing PRIM to invest at least $150 million in institutions that make capital available to small businesses and early-stage companies;
- Provides $1.5 million for MassVentures, an organization that supports the innovation economy by funding early-stage, high-growth startups in Massachusetts as they move from concept to commercialization;
- Creates the Angel Investor Tax Credit to incentivize investment and foster growth in newly formed start-ups in Massachusetts. Investors are eligible for a 20 percent credit of the qualifying angel investment, 30 percent if the recipient business is located in a Gateway City; and
- Authorizes increased spending for the Infrastructure Investment Incentive (I-Cubed) Program from $325 million to $600 million, and raises the number of allowed I-Cubed projects within any community from three to eight.

Since the 2008 economic downturn, the House of Representatives has targeted economic sectors that will provide sustainable jobs for workers of all skill levels across a variety of industries. The 2014 economic development legislation establishes the Middle Skills Job Training Grant Fund, funded at $15 million, to provide grants to vocational-technical schools and community colleges that will support advanced manufacturing and IT training. The fund seeks to train 4,000 workers in the next four years to meet the talent needs of Massachusetts employers. The bill also funds a matching grant program for small manufacturing companies to provide technical assistance and avert layoffs and closures.

The bill also improves two existing housing programs, the Housing Preservation & Stabilization Trust Fund through a $5 million investment, and the Housing Development Incentive Program, which provides developers with tax credits for mixed-income, market rate projects. This bill eliminates the cap on the number of units permitted per HDIP development and doubles the amount of existing tax credits to $10 million for the next four years. Other regional advancement provisions include:

- Invests $1.5 million in the Working Cities Challenge, a public-private initiative in partnership with the Boston Federal Reserve Bank, to advance cross-sector collaboration and create lasting economic improvement;
- Provides $10 million to the Brownfields Redevelopment Fund to encourage development of currently vacant and underutilized properties across the Commonwealth and provides $2.5 million for the Brownfields Redevelopment Access to Capital, which offers low-cost environmental insurance to help mitigate risk; and
- Creates a Job Creation Incentive, which will allow businesses to receive a tax credit up to $1,000 per job created, or up to $5,000 per job created in a Gateway City, capped at $1 million per project.

• The bill also creates a sales tax holiday on Aug. 16 and 17, marking the ninth year the Commonwealth will provide a two-day sales tax exemption.

CAMPAIGN VIEW

Post-conventional wisdom

RICK HOLMES

The complicated electoral contraption that culminated in last weekend's Democratic Convention was designed to do several things. It empowers the party's activists. It gives a voice to elected Democrats and the party organization, theoretically to help keep the activists from embracing unelectable extremists.

Mostly, the process is supposed to winnow the field, and to give the winning candidate a boost going into the primary campaign. In Worcester, Democrats did a little bit of winnowing, but not much boosting.

Instead of identifying a strong candidate who could open the general election campaign the next day — as Democrats did two years ago with Elizabeth Warren and Republicans tried to do this year with Charlie Baker — the convention produced evenly matched candidates in four races. Democrats have almost three months of hard campaigning ahead of them before they can begin to unite behind a ticket.

Take the governor's race, far and away the most important. Don't believe the spin about Steve Grossman being the big winner because he got more delegate votes. Nobody cares about the endorsement of the convention.

The big winner was Don Berwick, the only one of five governor candidates who exceeded expectations. For months, many observers assumed only two candidates would make it to the primary ballot, but Berwick won the hearts of the party's progressives with promises of a single-payer health care system, the repeal of the casino laws and a full-throated assault on poverty and injustice.

Not only did Berwick, a pediatrician, health policy expert and former Medicare chief in the Obama administration, cross the 15-percent threshold, he came within a percentage point of overtaking Martha Coakley. And because two other candidates, Juliette Kayyem and Joe Avellone, finished out of the running, Berwick gets to be the fresh face in the primary race, and the sole alternative to the two familiar insiders.

Instead of identifying a strong candidate, who could open the general election campaign the next day, the convention produced evenly matched candidates in four races.

The other two finalists came out of the convention weaker than when they went in.

Coakley still leads in the polls, benefiting from her higher name recognition. But the convention confirmed what has been clear since Scott Brown walked over her four years ago: two-thirds of the Democratic base just isn't that into her.

Grossman misplayed the expectations game. His people were predicting a stronger delegate tally that would give him decisive momentum going into a one-on-one race with Coakley. Grossman has money, organization, and a pretty good record as state treasurer, but an awful lot of Democrats aren't that into him either.

Berwick's performance won him an opportunity to introduce himself to the broader electorate, but Saturday may prove to have been his best day. He'll now face more intense scrutiny than he's seen so far, and not just by Democratic opponents. Voices from the Right are painting the defeat of Avellone, along with Berwick's surge, as proof that extremists have taken over the Democratic Party. On WCVB's "On The Record" Sunday, Republican commentator Ginny Buckingham dropped what may be the first "loony left" reference of the campaign. It won't be long before we hear Berwick being described as the father of the botched Obamacare rollout.

There are similar stories down the ballot. Attorney general candidate Maura Healey came within a hair of beating Warren Tolman at the convention. Tolman is experienced (he's run statewide before) and he's played in (brother Steven runs the AFL-CIO). But Healey's another attractive outsider, backed by the progressive establishment — and they often are stronger in the primary than at the convention. It promises to be an interesting campaign.

The field of lieutenant governor candidates was winnowed from four to three. Cambridge City Councilor Leland Cheung surprised many by making the primary ballot, where he'll face Mike Lake, considered the progressive activists' candidate, and Steve Kerrigan, who is closer to the party organization. If there was anything interesting about the lieutenant governor's job, it could be an interesting race to watch.

The treasurer field didn't get winnowed at all. Pre-conventional wisdom had Tom Conroy on the bubble. His opponents, Sen. Barry Finegold and Brookline activist Deb Goldberg, had stronger geographical bases, but Conroy made the most of endorsements from his fellow state reps. Goldberg ended up with 38 percent, Conroy with 34 percent and Finegold with 27 percent. That makes it an even battle, if not necessarily a riveting campaign.

So the political landscape post-convention has Democrats fighting through the summer in four contests — which will come as good news to Republicans.

Selectmen approve farmers market season

Event application deadline extendedBy Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Should legacy events be allowed to forgo the town's new event application policy?

That was the question the Board of Selectmen grappled with during a Tuesday night discussion on the Cohasset Farmers Market. As of Tuesday, the market organizers had not yet turned in an event application or insurance certificate, which the town requires for all events.

The selectmen instituted an event application process a few years ago; anyone seeking to hold an event in Cohasset must fill out the form and get sign-offs from the police, fire, and relevant department heads.

Some legacy events, such as the farmers' market, which is in its 23rd season, are still new to the application process. The market had its opening day yesterday (Thursday, June 19) and will run every Thursday on the town common through October 16.

Selectmen chair Diane Kennedy said that it was the

"We have a great lineup of great vendors this year and are very excited for this season."

board's responsibility to ask organizations to fill out the event application, and the market should not be penalized in any way.

"Frankly, I think we dropped the ball administratively," said Kennedy, adding that events like the farmers market have been allowed to operate without a formal application "year after year."

"We didn't force that event application on them and we shouldn't" now, Kennedy added. "This event policy is relatively new... a lot of people were grandfathered and eased in to the process."

"There's been a fair amount of adjustment," selectmen vice-chair Steve Gaumer said. "Frankly, I think a lot of people look at it from the perspective, 'You know who we are.'"

Selectman Martha Gjestebly thinks the board needs to be consistent in approving events, and that all event organizers should have to follow the same procedures.

It should be "the same process for everybody," said

Gjestebly. "I'm a process person."

Selectman Karen Quigley said that, still, the market has had plenty of time to turn in the application. She was also concerned about potential liabilities to the town without an insurance certificate in place.

The selectmen voted to approve the market dates (June 19 - Oct. 16) subject to the organizers turning in an insurance certificate; they must also complete the application and turn it in to the selectmen's office by Thursday, June 26 so that the materials may be included in the selectmen's meeting packet for Tuesday, July 1.

Kennedy also encouraged the market organizers to attend the July 1 meeting.

Tracey Connors, assistant to the Board of Selectmen, said Thursday morning that the insurance certificate was turned in on Wednesday.

Michael Hubley, manager of the farmers market, also verified that the certificate was all set, adding that he was still new to the application process; this is his second season overseeing the event.

Hubley said that despite the slight hiccup, the market is ready to launch.

"We have a great lineup of great vendors this year and are very excited for this season," Hubley said in an email.

The market manager also listed "the many positives" of the farmers market, such as "supporting the local farming community, education on healthy eating, giving young entrepreneurs a chance to start their own business, scholarships for Cohasset graduates, providing an opportunity to people that have an idea and a dream of starting their own business, [and] the social benefits of young and old getting together and enjoying our great Cohasset town common, to name a few."

The Cohasset farmers' market takes place every Thursday from 2 to 6 p.m. on the town common in front of Town Hall (41 Highland Ave.). For more on the farmers' market, visit:

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: Beacon Hill Roll Call records the votes of local representatives on five roll calls and local senators on seven roll calls from the week of June 9-13.

GAS LEAKS (H 4164) House 147-0, Senate 38-0, approved legislation that would require gas leaks to be repaired by the gas company in a time frame based on a three-tier classification system of dangerousness. Grade One leaks are most likely to cause an explosion and would have to be repaired immediately. Grade Two leaks are expected to create a hazard in the future and would have to be fixed within 15 months, while Grade Three leaks are non-hazardous and would have to be reevaluated every six months. Other provisions align civil penalties for pipeline facility and gas transportation safety violations with federal law and require gas leaks that are identified within a school zone to be prioritized.

Supporters said the state's gas delivery system is the second oldest in the nation and has 5,700 miles of leak-prone distribution pipe and 20,000 known leaks. They noted the bill will help prevent gas leak tragedies, save lives and have a positive impact on the environment by reducing methane gas.

The bill needs one more round of approval in each branch before it goes to Gov. Deval Patrick.

(A "Yes" vote is for the bill.)

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT (H 4165) House 125-23, approved and sent to the Senate an economic development package which includes a two-day sales tax holiday in August. Other provisions include $2.5 million for loan guarantees to small businesses; $10 million for brownfields redevelopment; $2 million in the Talent Pipeline initiative that encourages students and young innovators to get a head start on their futures by matching stipends for interns at innovation start-ups; $1.5 million for MassVentures to fund early-stage, high-growth startups in Massachusetts as they move from concept to commercialization; $15 million for the Middle Skills Job Training Grant Fund that provide grants to vocational-technical schools and community colleges to support advanced manufacturing and IT training; and a new tax credit for investors in qualifying Massachusetts startup companies.

Supporters said the package would bolster the economy and create jobs. They noted it will encourage private sector investment, support the manufacturing sector and expand economic opportunity beyond I-495. Opponents said that government cannot fix the economy by throwing money at it. They said they favored proposals that would reduce taxes, cut regulations and create greater predictability for the business community.

(A "Yes" vote is for the bill. A "No" vote is against it.)

2014 SALES TAX HOLIDAY (H 4165) House 132-14, approved a bill allowing consumers to buy most products that cost under $2,500 on Saturday, August 16, and Sunday, August 17, without paying the state's 6.25 percent sales tax.

Supporters of the bill said that the holiday would boost retail sales and noted that consumers over the past several years have saved millions of dollars during similar tax-free holidays. They argued that the state's sales tax revenue loss would be offset by increased revenue from the meals and gas tax revenue generated by shoppers on those two days. Some opponents of the bill said the state cannot afford the up to $40 million revenue loss and argued the holiday actually generates little additional revenue for stores because consumers would buy the products even without the tax-free days. They said that the Legislature should be looking at broader, deeper tax relief for individuals and businesses and not a tiny tax-free holiday. Others said that legislators should not vote for this tax holiday when they have not yet restored all the local aid, education and other program cuts made over the past few years.

(A "Yes" vote is for the tax-free holiday. A "No" vote is against it.)

WAIVER CORPORATE EXCISE TAX (H 4165) House 44-102, rejected an amendment waiving the state's minimum $456 annual corporate excise tax for the first three years that a corporation is in business but does not make a profit. Under current law, the tax must be paid annually even if the corporation does not make a profit.

Amendment supporters said this temporary tax reduction does not apply to large corporations that are making huge profits but rather is designed to provide relief to many small, struggling start-up businesses that often have only one employee. They argued the waiver would pay off down the road when these small businesses thrive, create jobs and pay more taxes. Amendment opponents said that the waiver would cost the state millions in lost revenue that it cannot afford to absorb. They argued that the $456 per year is not going to make or break a business and noted that waiving the tax would not affect a person's decision on whether or not to start a business. Some said that the waiver should be considered in the context of a broader tax bill that would be the subject of a public hearing.

(A "Yes" vote is for the amendment waiving the $456 tax. A "No" vote is against the waiver.)

DELAY MEALS TAX HOLIDAY (H 4165) House 108-38, approved a Democratic-sponsored amendment indefinitely delaying a Republican-sponsored proposal that would exempt diners from paying the state's 6.25 percent meals tax from July 27-31, 2014. The amendment would require the state to study the impact of tax holidays on the state's economy.

Some supporters of the study said they oppose the meals tax holiday and acknowledged the study kills the proposal while avoiding a direct vote on it. Some said the state simply cannot afford the estimated $8 million revenue loss while others said they are open to the idea but favor the study so legislators can see the positive and/or negative impact of the exemption. Opponents of the study said rising food costs, high fuel prices, high unemployment and a poor economy have hurt the restaurant industry and resulted in fewer customers. They argued the "study" is a blatant, age-old tactic by Democrats to kill tax relief by studying it "to death" and avoiding an up or down vote on it. They noted past experience shows that none of these "alleged" studies are actually done, and the meals tax holiday will be defeated without representatives having to take a direct vote on it.

(A "Yes" vote is for the delay. A "No" vote is against the delay.)

HIKE MINIMUM WAGE TO $11 PER HOUR (S 2195) Senate 35-4, approved a conference committee version of a bill hiking the current $8 per hour minimum wage by $3 over the next three years, beginning in January 2015, to $11 per hour by July 2017. The measure also makes changes in the state's unemployment insurance system; creates a Council on the Underground Economy to combat the growing exchange of goods and services which are conducted "off the books;" and raises the minimum hourly wage for tipped employees over three years from its current level of $2.63 to $3.75. The bill was hammered out by a conference committee after the House and Senate approved different versions of it. The measure does not include a provision, originally in the Senate version, that automatically raises future wages to reflect increases in the Consumer Price Index.

Supporters said this pro-worker bill would ensure economic justice and help thousands of families who are living near the poverty level despite the fact that the breadwinner works in excess of 40 hours weekly. They argued that a minimum wage hike is one of the best anti-poverty programs available. Opponents said the hike is unfair to businesses that are already faced with skyrocketing health care and energy costs and would also hurt consumers by forcing businesses to raise prices. Some said they supported a smaller increase to $9.50.

The measure needs additional House and Senate approval before it goes to the governor.

(A "Yes" vote is for the minimum wage hike. A "No" vote is against it.)

EXPAND BOSTON CONVENTION CENTER (S 2188) Senate 31-6, approved a $1.1 billion borrowing bill to fund a 1.3 million square-foot expansion of the Boston Convention and Exhibition Center. Funding is provided by existing fees and taxes including a tax on hotel rooms in Boston and Cambridge and a $10 fee on all car rentals in Boston. A controversial provision automatically raises the Boston hotel tax from 12 percent to 14 percent if the funding to pay off the debt falls short.

Supporters said the project will create an estimated 4,000 construction jobs and 2,000 permanent jobs while generating an estimated $15 million annually in taxes and $185 million in private sector business. They noted Massachusetts is losing valuable and profitable business from events that the center is too small to accommodate. Opponents said the state was scheduled to pay off the existing loans that built the convention center by 2034 but noted this new expansion will require the state to continue servicing the debt on the $1.1 billion project until 2050. They said the state should be spending money on more important projects including repairing the state's crumbling infrastructure.

The House has approved a different version of the bill. The Senate version now goes to the House for consideration.

(A "Yes" vote is for the bill. A "No" vote is against it.)

CAP DEBT SERVICE (S 2187) Senate 5-32, rejected an amendment requiring the governor and the Legislature to agree on the amount of debt service that will be allowed each fiscal year. The amendment also requires a public hearing on the state's debt and the economy.

Amendment supporters argued that the way the state sets its bond cap is inadequate and largely left to the governor. They noted the amendment mirrors the process of how the state determines a consensus revenue estimate by requiring the governor and Legislature to come together and agree on the amount of money that the state can spend for debt service. Amendment opponents said there are already systems set up to ensure the state's debt does not get out of control. They noted the system has worked because the state has excellent bond ratings from Moody's.

(A "Yes" vote is for the amendment. A "No" vote is against it.)

BAN USE OF HOTEL/MOTEL TAX (S 2188) Senate 15-22, rejected an amendment that would prohibit revenue from the hotel/motel tax in non-Boston cities and towns from being used to pay off the bonds if the state cannot pay its debt on the $1.1 billion convention center project. This revenue would come from both the state hotel tax of 5.7 percent and the up to 6 percent additional local hotel tax imposed by some cities and towns, which is revenue that goes to the community, not the state.

Amendment supporters said it is outrageous and unfair to rob other cities and towns of their hotel tax revenue in order to fund a convention center in Boston. Amendment opponents said allowing the non-Boston hotel tax to be used will give the state a lower borrowing rate. They argued that if other communities' money is actually used, the bill allows the Boston hotel tax to be raised to pay back them back.

(A "Yes" vote is for prohibiting non-Boston funds from being used. A "No" vote is for allowing it.)

AUTOMATIC INCREASE OF BOSTON HOTEL TAX (S 2188) Senate 6-31, rejected an amendment that would strike a section of the bill that automatically increases the Boston hotel tax from 12 percent to 14 percent if the funding to pay off the debt falls short.

Amendment supporters said they oppose any automatic increases and argued the Legislature should deal with a situation like that if and when it happens. Amendment opponents said having the automatic hike provision gives the state a lower borrowing rate and noted the Legislature can always repeal the increase if and when the time comes.

(A "Yes" vote is for prohibiting the automatic tax hike. A "No" vote is for allowing it.)

$1.31 BILLION CAPITAL PROJECTS (H 3920) Senate 37-0, approved a $1.31 billion capital spending bill that would allow the state to borrow funds for various projects including $354 million for the acquisition of state property, $50 million for the Massachusetts Cultural Fund, $35 million for State Police cruisers, $20 million for renovations to the Massachusetts Senate Chamber, $6.2 million for a new vault in the state archives building, $378 million for general state facility improvements and $312.5 million for health and human services state facility projects.

Hundreds of millions of dollars of earmarks to fund projects proposed by individual legislators for their districts were also included in the package. In reality, the projects are actually more of a "wish list." The Patrick administration is required to adhere to the state's annual bond borrowing cap and ultimately decides which projects are affordable and actually get funded.

Supporters said the bill is a fiscally responsible one that will fund important projects while maintaining the state's excellent bond rating.

(A "Yes" vote is for the bill.)

TRAFFIC

New signs ask drivers to go slow

By Erin Dale
edale@wickedlocal.com

Two Cohasset streets are getting new signage in an attempt to control traffic in the area.

Director of Project Manager and Planning Brian Joyce and Police Sergeant Jeff Treanor made the case to the Board of Selectmen to install new signs at Red Gate Lane and Fair Oaks Lane, both of which are "problem speeding areas," said Joyce.

The lanes also contain sharp curves and are in highly populated neighborhoods with young families.

The Board of Selectmen voted 4-0 (with one abstention from Kevin McCarthy, who lives on Fair Oaks Lane) in favor of the new yellow and black signs, which will read "Thickly settled: 20 mph" and signs with arrows reading "15 mph."

While the signs contain suggested speed limits, concerns were raised that these speeds are not enforceable. Joyce explained that if a speed study is conducted, the absolute or "prima facie" speed by motorists could become the speed limit.

"Be careful what you wish for," Joyce said of speed studies.

Town Manager Chris Senior agreed. "We don't want a speed study to lock our speed up higher."

Selectmen chair Diane Kennedy said at the very least, the new signage could act as a "visual deterrent" for motorists.

"I do think it'll help," said Kennedy. "There's no way off of that road other than seeing those two signs. Hopefully it will calm down the speed."

Joyce said that he plans to contact abutters about the new signs before they're posted, but that they will be in between property lines and next to bushes and shrubbery.

Senior said the signs are a "good first step" to better control the traffic, adding that however, "I think we need to stay on top of it."

check a few years ago, adding that she thinks it's important "to quantify or value" elder services.

"It helps us provide meaning, credibility, and validity to our organization," said Grande. "Although it's difficult to quantify the 'intangible' value, the importance of volunteer service, what it means to seniors, and how it makes a difference in our community, it's easy to see the effects."

Grande shared how the volunteer hours were broken down this year:

- 54 drivers gave 1,084 hours delivering meals to homebound seniors;
- 20 volunteer drivers gave 350 hours driving seniors around town to appointments, grocery shopping, trips to the bank, post office, etc.
- 29 individuals volunteered 1,449 hours to prepare, cook, and serve congregate meals, at the senior center and café;
- 5 individuals gave 258 hours visiting homebound seniors in Cohasset;
- 2 people volunteered 162 hours of their time to assist seniors in SHINE issues (Serving Health Information Needs of Elders), and 1 person gave 49 hours to assist elders in the small home repair program.

While there were 215 volunteers total, Grande said that there are 10 individuals in particular "who have worked innumerable hours for the past five years to make certain that our community finally has a senior center that has flexible, dedicated space; a place to create and grow the many programs that our community has identified, and to match service provision needs for the increasing over 60 population."

The new senior center construction project, spearheaded by Cohasset's Social Service League and funded through donations, is underway and expected to be completed by December 2014. The SSL and Elder Affairs hosted a groundbreaking ceremony at the center's future home, 91 Sohier Street, last month.

Grande said that the senior center would not have come this far without volunteers.

"Volunteers are the backbone, the glue of Elder Affairs," the director said. "Volunteering or service to one's community isn't always one big thing; it's a million little things, but all of them put together provide services that we would be unable to provide if not for dedicated and

Volunteering: by the numbers

- 215 volunteers
- 171 volunteers worked 10 to 50 hours per year
- 28 volunteers worked 1 to 5 hours per week
- 9 volunteers worked 5 to 19.5 hours per week
- 7 volunteers worked 20 hours per week or more
- Total: 11,100 hours of service faithful individuals who give of their time and energy for the benefit of others in our Cohasset community."

The Elder Affairs director explained that volunteering is also part of the department's mission statement: to provide "services, programs and activities to help seniors remain in their own homes as long as possible and remain connected and engaged in the community."

Sometimes it takes a village, said Grande.

"We can't do it alone - we recruit and engage volunteers to help us accomplish this mission, and they do," she said. "They do it willingly and expertly again and again. It is the finest example of a labor of love. And we are so appreciative of each and every one of them, and I'm sure the community is, too."

like colleagues, and others he queried about the new manager.

"They very spoke highly of him and said he has a low tolerance for nonsense," Quigley said of Lutjens. "That's the impression I get from him... He runs a very tight ship."

The manager said he's been working at the inn around the clock, from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week. "There is so much to do," said Lutjens. "I want to make some real changes."

Lutjens also said that he has hired an assistant manager to alleviate some of his long hours. The assistant manager is a colleague of Lutjens who worked with him at the Harvard Faculty Club, and will relocate to Hull from Salem, New Hampshire.

Quigley is impressed with the new manager's progress at the inn, which has been known for needing a police presence at weddings. "He's taking affirmative steps to straighten things out over there," the acting chief said.

Humphreys described Lutjens as "proactive" and said he has "the kind of personality" the inn needs. "His approach is fresh," said the attorney, "not only in the building but in the community and neighborhood."

One thing that's been straightened out - a $12,000 bill the inn owed the police department for details. Quigley reported that he and Lutjens went over the bills together and as of this week, the Red Lion is all caught up with payments.

"Everything has been cleared up," said Quigley. "There's nothing due that's more than 30 days old."

The selectmen voted unanimously (5-0) to approve the inn's new corporate structure and Lutjens as manager. Selectmen chair Diane Kennedy welcomed him to the community.

"I welcome you to Cohasset and am happy to have someone of your caliber over there, and hope the staff recognizes what they have in terms of a professional manager," said Kennedy.

Outdoor ceremonies

Selectmen vice-chair Steve Gaumer asked Lutjens for a favor: to ensure that the inn's entertainment license agreement with the town is upheld, and that the inn does not make promises to wedding parties to allow outdoor music and other things that are not part of the license. Gaumer said he doesn't want to hear from brides-to-be asking the selectmen for exceptions to the rule, and would rather hear from the inn's management.

"There's a set of conditions in the license long held by the Red Lion Inn... I'd request that any lobbying be done by license holder, not the customers," said Gaumer, further requesting that the inn's events "accurately" represent what's allowed in the license.

Gaumer recognized that this is a legacy issue that is new to Lutjens. "I thoroughly understand this is something you've inherited."

Lutjens said that he has reviewed the inn's license requirements and posted them.

Town Manager evaluation

The Board of Selectmen voted unanimously (5-0) Tuesday to approve performance evaluation worksheets for the town manager's upcoming performance review. The board's policy is to review the town manager's first six months on the job; Town Manager Chris Senior started working in Cohasset in January.

Selectmen chair Diane Kennedy formed a subcommittee with selectman Karen Quigley to prepare the worksheets with Human Resources consultant Lisa Ugliarolo. Each selectman will fill out an individual review, which will be compiled into one final document.

While the individual evaluations will become part of Senior's personnel file, which will not be public, the compilation document will be public and presented during the July 15 selectmen meeting.

Laxmen win State Championship

By Mark Ducharme
Correspondent

There was a sigh of relief before Cohasset had its chance to celebrate its Div. 3 state title. The Skippers appeared on their way to a convincing win after their six goal second period gave them an 8-3 lead at halftime in their state title game with Dover-Sherborn. In the second half though, penalties slowed down Cohasset and D-S came up with a great comeback effort, but the Skippers hung on for a 10-9 win and the state title. The game went down to the final second and senior Cohasset goalie John Conte made his 10th and final save of the game on a partially blocked Grant Gregory shot in the final seconds.

The Skippers gained a measure of revenge as Dover-Sherborn defeated Cohasset,

Day for the ages

WILL WASSERSUG

Saturday marked another historic day for the Cohasset athletic program.

For the second time in school history, the Skippers earned two State Championships in the span of hours.

A school winning two State Championships in a season is nothing new. I don't exactly know who has done it or how many times, but the Skippers did it in special fashion, winning both championships in one day.

The last time it happened was in 2010, when the boys lacrosse team won a championship at Harvard University, then notched a baseball title a few miles up the road in Lynn.

This year, Cohasset junior Emma Davis won the MIAA Individual State Tennis Championship in the morning in Shrewsbury, then the boys lacrosse team took care of business with a thrilling 10-9 win over Dover-Sherborn at Boston University.

Both championships were special.

Davis' was her third in a row, making her the first player in Mass. history to accomplish the feat.

She'll be back next year to try for the ultimate sweep that would cement her place in MIAA tennis history as the finest high school player ever in the state - that is if she hasn't already claimed that title.

The game of lacrosse has always been special for Cohasset assistant coach Joe Donovan.

He grew up with four older brothers, who were All-scholastic high school players and played Div. 1 lacrosse.

Donovan followed their footsteps as he was a high school All-American at Weymouth and led the Wildcats to the Div. 1 Eastern Mass championship game. One of his teammates was Cohasset assistant principal Brian Scott, who also coached at Catholic Memorial.

GIRLS TENNIS

Davis does it again

Tennis phenom wins third straight MIAA Individual Tennis title

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

Tennis has done extremely well for Cohasset High School junior Emma Davis.

For one thing, playing on the high school team gave her a break from the more cutthroat style of tennis seen on the USTA circuit, and allowed her to be a part of a team - a team full of friends to cheer her on during long matches, and friends she could cheer on as well

Her team had a strong season, getting to the MIAA Div. 3 South Sectional Semifinal, where she won her match in an eventual team loss to Ursuline.

More importantly, Davis just set a new standard in MIAA history as the first athlete to win three consecutive MIAA Individual Tennis Tournaments.

Davis, a junior, was especially pleased winning this time around.

"It was really incredible," Davis said. "Each year has been better and better. This year I had my whole family there watching and cheering for me."

"I was so happy. My brother is 19 and he was there. My sister is 21. She works in New York and came back for the weekend to watch me play. My aunts and uncles were all there too. It was just great!"

Three titles – three tries. It doesn't get any better than that.

If you have had a chance to watch Emma play, and I have, it is a true joy.

She not only makes it look easy, but there is an intangible as well, a feeling of someone who truly is enjoying what she does.

As a member of the Cohasset High School girls tennis team, Davis is a captain and a friend to her teammates, who are always there to support her, in the same way she supports her friends when they play.

"It's fun to be part of a team," Davis said. "I've never really been on a team before (high school tennis). It's great to have the support and friends with you."

Cohasset Athletic Director Ron Ford enjoys it.

"I give Emma so much credit today. She's the first three-time champion in Mass. history," he said. "Some people up there are saying she might be the best ever in the state."

For Ford, who has been Cohasset's AD for 14 years, the past few weeks have been crazy.

With teams making deep runs into playoffs, including a Sectional Championship from the boys tennis team, he's been busy.

"I tell you what, this is a very very fun day, a great day to be the AD here that's for sure," Ford said while enjoying the boys victory at BU. "It's going to be a good Father's Day tomorrow. I think I may take a day off. It's a grind. We had 18 tournament games in the past two and a half weeks and I've been at every one of them. It's been a fun run. What a great spring."

As for the lacrosse team, coach James Beaudoin was enjoying winning the title in his second season. Like most at the small school, Beaudoin said this championship was a team effort that extended into other sports.

"Every time I coached somewhere the second year is always better," he said. "You know the kids. We have so much talent. I'd love to thank the football coach (Pete Afanasiw) and I'd love to thank the soccer coach (Jim Willis). Both took them to championship games and I've got those kids here and they got the kids ready for me. They're multi-sport athletes and I don't have to run sprints the first five weeks. I can just get to lacrosse."

For next season, he's hoping to keep the winning spirit.

"I think we're going to strengthen the schedule, play some tougher teams," he said. "It's not that we don't play tough teams already, but we'll come back and play, see what teams do to us and get better. You always have to get better."

Fortunately, Beaudoin has the spring season, which means his players can actually enjoy the title for a bit before jumping right into another sport.

"They deserved it, the seniors deserved the medals," he said, adding that Laxachusetts lacrosse is already starting new tournaments and that his players will be right in the mix. "We have two Division 1 commits and a the rest are trying."

That pretty much sums it up. A great spring and a special day.

The Boston Bandits (Bridgewater, MA) Metropolitan Junior Hockey League team won the 2013-14 regular season league championship with a record of 46-1-3. The Bandits were the 2014 Keegan Cup Champions and qualified for the USA Junior Nationals. The team consisted of players from Massachusetts (several from the south

Red Sox win World Series

Team comes back from fifth place to win title

The Cohasset Mariner

Another exciting year for Cohasset Major League Baseball with the Red Sox winning Cohasset's World Series against the formidable Texas Rangers who led the league during the regular season.

Game one of the World Series was a pitching duel with Thomas Kierce and Austen Tarpey on the mound for the Rangers as they held the Red Sox to only three runs.

The Red Sox threw Michael Milanoski and Ben Fernando for an inning each while Ian Appleby concluded the last four innings of the game with 38 pitches, no walks, and five strikeouts. Despite a home run by Austin Tarpey the Red Sox only allowed one more run to take game one 3-2.

Game two of the best of three took off in the third when the Red Sox scored five runs led off by a single from Josh Hassan.

The Red Sox bats were hitting the ball (hopefully the Boston Red Sox will start to follow the lead of our Cohasset team), with Jack Norton leading the power squad along with Ian Appleby and Michael Milanoski all with three hits each.

Chris Karelekas had a busy day at the plate with two extra base hits. Burke Matthey lead the team with a walk, Gavin Carter followed with a walk, and Ryan Madden kept everyone on their toes with a solid at bat.

With almost every Red Sox batter having a hit, the Rangers didn't have a chance on Thursday especially given the flawless Red Sox defense.

Michael Milanoski was a workhorse on the mound, pitching all six innings, allowed no earned runs, with five hits and no walks throwing 64 pitches to complete the game.

Other notable defensive players were Ben Fernando tracking a well hit ball to the fence by Cam Albanese looking for his second home run of the season as Ben robbed him of that glory by reaching over the fence to catch the ball as it was leaving the park.

counted for three outs each throwing to first baseman Jack Norton. Justin Appleby rounded out the infield catching the game while contributing a double that scored two runs.

The Rangers tried to start a rally led by Cam Albanese in the sixth who again tried to take Milanoski deep, Colin Madden tracked the ball to the warning track catching it while almost taking his glove, hand, and arm off.

We have been told he will be getting a new glove as the stitching snapped on the catch as the Red Sox won 10-2 in six innings at Barnes Field to clinch the Cohasset World Series.

The coaches Michael Milanoski, Bobby Barrows, and Sanji Fernando could not be more excited for their team.

About a third of the way through the season the Red Sox were in fifth place in a league of six teams. The team learned to work as a team, took extra practices, worked hard in the batting cage with Coach Barrows, and learned to play and win as a team including a 24-1 win against a strong team during their rebound.

The returning Red Sox will be left with six solid players next year that all contributed to the success of our team. Including Burke Matthey, everyone remembers his double to right field after leading the team in the batting order.

Ryan Madden and his solid defense at second base making key plays against last years defending champs the Mets.

His brother Colin Madden, who had no fear including pitching against Zander Gomez. Gavin Carter, who played first, center field, and pitched several great games as a lefty, Justin Appleby who caught the final game and had a solid season batting. Chris Karelekas had a hot bat as well with the third highest batting average on the team wait till next season.

Our retiring players ended their major league career with a 12-5-3 record this year but more importantly they learned that in order to win in a team sport the team must work as a team and respect one another and work hard to help make everyone perform at the top of their ability. Overall the team had a season batting average of .381 that included Jack Norton and Ben Fernando (who pitched a one hit game earlier this season) each having 14 walks during the season and 40 hits combined. Josh Hassen and Ryan Leahy had over 45 hits during the season including scoring almost 40 runs. Ian Appleby had a batting average of .520 for the year including 28 runs.

Michael Milanoski lead the team with a batting average of .655, zero strikeouts, several home runs, and 38 hits.

His skills earned Donovan a scholarship at Duke, where he was a middle and part of a Final Four team.

Donovan found a new lacrosse home in Cohasset, where he lives with his wife Jackie and their four children who also play the game.

He was an assistant coach for James Beaudoin this year and enjoyed being along for the ride in Cohasset's ride to the Div. 3 State title 10-9 win over Dover-Sherborn and appreciated being part of the staff.

"This was great," said Donovan. "Coach Beaudoin did an incredible job. All three captains raised their level of play and everyone did something great in the game. The kids composed themselves late in the game. Our goalie John Conte played great all year and Jack Donovan did a great job tipping the pass away late in the game (when D-S threatened to tie the game)."

"Coach Beaudoin has me work with the players on drills. I give him some assistance on strategy. We talk back and forth. I am just part of the staff with Coach Belson and Coach (Phil) Mahoney. It was great how the whole town supported these kids."

Beaudoin feels he has a great situation in his two seasons at Cohasset.

"It is a town effort," said Beaudoin. "Our youth program has given us this (state title). This is not a high school thing, this is me getting the right ingredients and putting the stew together."

I have a great staff, they are the right helpers, they take time off from work and they stay late and do a great job. I am not a coach who runs sprints and does punishments and I think that shows a lot that you can coach a different way."

Donovan is proud of being a part of what Cohasset has to offer.

"I have four kids in the Cohasset school system," said Donovan. "Cohasset has a great youth program and Coach Beaudoin supports everyone from Kindergarten on up. My girls are playing the game too."

This season, Davis was a junior captain and she plans to be back with the team next year where she can shoot for a four-peat in the individual competition.

That would give the rest of high school players something to aspire to.

"We had our banquet last night," Davis said Wednesday. "It's sad to see our seniors graduating. We had a great bond."

Davis said winning again wasn't guaranteed.

"I'm grateful," she said. "I've played Jessica (finals opponent, Jessica Perkins) three years in a row. She's really, really good. Last year I played her in the finals. I had her another year in the semifinals. She's so good. I'm grateful to be able to win. I can't describe the feeling."

Davis said she expects the next one won't come easily. "Jessica graduated, but there are so many talented young girls coming up," she said. "There was one girl I played in the semifinals who was really good."

Davis plans on defending the title one more time at Cohasset, and then taking her game to college.

"I'm going to Wake Forest," she said. "I'll play tennis there. I'm excited."

Davis took some time away from the tennis circuit for the high school experience.

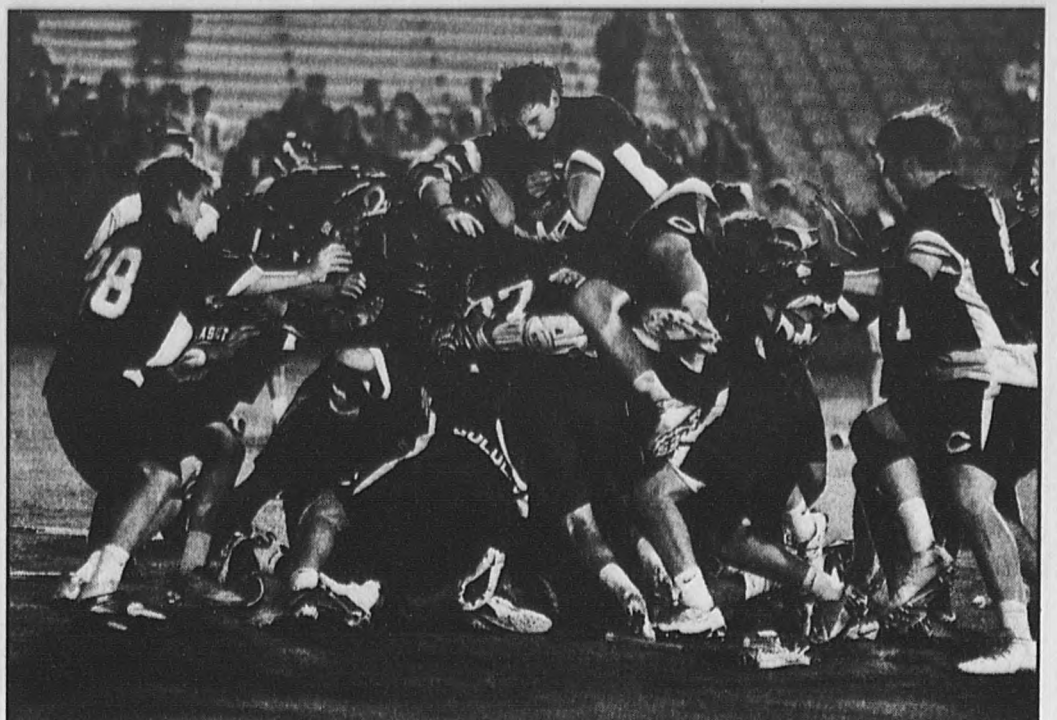

It was worth it. "Gigi (coach Gigi Meehan) went out of her way to make it fun," she said. "And it worked. I wanted to take a break from the USTA tournaments and be part of a team with friends."

Cohasset Athletic Director Ron Ford was pleased with Davis and the Cohasset lacrosse team.

"It's a very, very fun day," he said. "A good day to be AD here at Cohasset."

VICTORY

12-10 for the Div. 3 state title last year.

The Skippers win their second state title in the last five years. They last won the title in 2010 when they defeated Norwell, 10-7.

They had won back-to-back Div. 3 state titles in 2006 and 2007 and were state runners up in 2008.

In 2010, the Cohasset baseball team also won a Div. 4 State Championship on the same day, and the Boston Bruins added to the fun by claiming the Stanley Cup that same evening.

"I don't know how to explain it," Conte said. "It was a crazy game."

"It almost did not end the way the way we wanted it to," said Cohasset midfielder Cole Kissick. "But we were able to hang on."

Conte was one of the keys for the Skippers being able to hang on. The senior goalie in his 10 saves came up with some big ones at point-blank range when D-S made its attempted comeback by taking advantage of man-up situations throughout the game.

"Jack Conte is one of the best goalies around," said Cohasset coach James Beaudoin. "He has not had a bad game all season and his stats are unbelievable. He has let up six goals per game and has a 70 % save percentage. He is a stud goalie."

"That is my favorite time," said Conte about playing in man-down situations. "That is where you can gain some momentum."

Cohasset gained some momentum early in the fourth period. They let their offense control the ball and slow down D-S.

The Raiders closed to within 9-8 at the end of the third period, but Will Golden gave Cohasset a cushion with a strong drive down the middle and scored his second goal of the game to give the Skippers a 10-8 lead.

They were able to win control of the possession after the goal for over-four plus minutes and it helped the Skippers backline settle down.

"That was huge for us in the fourth period," said Conte about Cohasset holding on to the ball. "It helped us out a little bit. I won't say that our defense was getting down on themselves, but we needed those possession for helping us to settle down."

"We have learned to do that against good teams," said Beaudoin. "We had to kill a three-minute penalty a couple of games ago. Our kids learned from that and did a good job."

Cohasset did a good job of dominating the second period of the game. They fell behind 3-2 after a period.

The second period though, Cohasset erupted for six straight goals in a span of 10:06 to go up 8-3 at halftime.

Adam Benson took a feed from Jeff Powers in front of the cage for the first goal of the period to tie the game, 3-3 90 seconds into the second period.

Golden, Colin Whelan, Kissick, Powers and Whelan again added the goals that took Cohasset from a 3-2 deficit and gave them an 8-3 lead.

Beaudoin knew that things could turn around in a hurry despite the six goal second period outburst.

"We were up 5-0 against them (during the regular season)," said Beaudoin. "and they came back and tied it, 5-5. We knew that they were capable of anything."

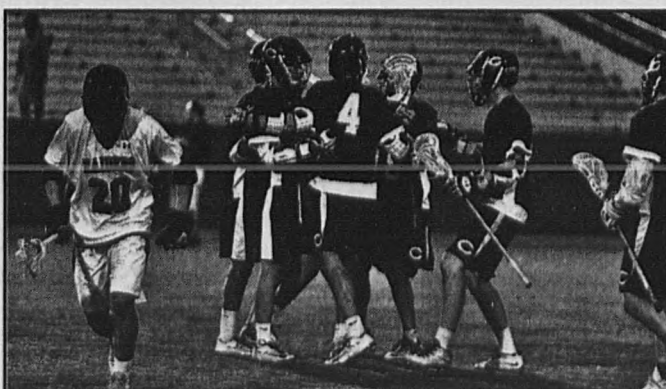

"You couldn't rest on what you did, because everything was being called. We were never clear of them."

Kissick, who led the Cohasset offense with three goals had one in the first period, another in the second period and added his third one in third period.

He felt that his team had the balance to hold on and win the game.

"Our goalie is awesome," said Kissick. "He could have been an All-American. Our defense has been awesome all year, Tim Gillis has been great and John McElgunn has also been great. John Donohue has been an up and coming player. We will mostly have everyone back."

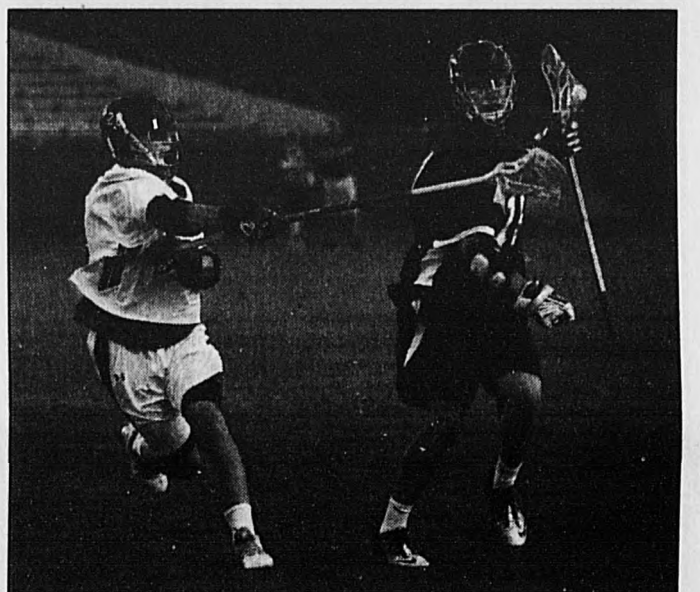

Besides the three goals by Kissick, Whelan and Golden had two apiece for Cohasset. Benson, Danny Axleson and Powers scored one each for the Skippers. Powers also had two assists in the game.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF JUNE 30, 2014

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Get your facts together and become familiar with them before you have to face up to that interview. The better prepared you are, the easier it will be to make that important impression.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) New information might warrant changing your mind about a recently made decision. Never mind the temporary confusion it might cause. Acting on the truth is always preferable.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Creating a loving atmosphere for those you care for could pay off in many ways. Expect to hear some unexpected but very welcome news that can make a big difference in your life.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Stepping away from an old and seemingly insoluble problem might be helpful. Use the time to take a new look at the situation and perhaps work out a new method of dealing with it.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're still in a favorable goal-setting mode. However, you might need to be a little more realistic about some of your aims. Best to reach for what is currently doable. The rest will follow.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A setback is never easy to deal with. But it could be a boon in disguise. Recheck your proposal, and strengthen the weak spots. Seek advice from someone who has "been there and done that."

LIBRA (September 23 to October

22) Coming up with a new way of handling a tedious job-regulated chore could lead to more than just a congratulatory memo once the word reaches the "right people." Good luck.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) What you might call determination someone else might regard as stubbornness. Look for ways to reach a compromise that won't require a major shift of views on your part.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You're still in a vulnerable mode vis-a-vis "offers" that sound too good to be true. So continue to be skeptical about anything that can't be backed up with provable facts.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Thrift is still dominant this week. What you don't spend on what you don't need will be available for you to draw on should a possible (albeit temporary) money crunch hit.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Staying close to home early in the week allows for some introspection about your social life. Sort out your feelings before rejoining your fun-time fellows on the weekend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) It can be a bit daunting as well as exciting to find yourself finally taking action on a long-delayed move for a change. It helps to stay with it when others rally to support you.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your love of home and family provide you with the emotional support you need to find success in the outside world.

Level: Hoo Boy!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Arts Festival

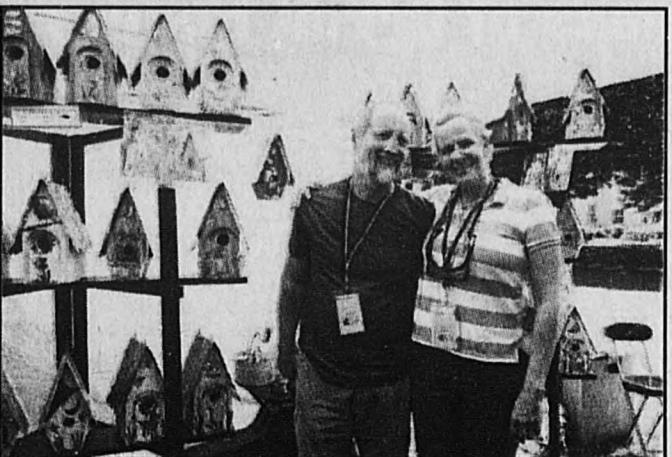

Painted shoes on display at the South Shore Arts Festival.

Each year, the South Shore Arts Festival showcases New England craft and fine artists with juried exhibition booths, juried art exhibition and members' show, artist demonstrations, children's art activities, young artist exhibition, live musical performances and more.

The festival takes place on the town common on Father's Day weekend. This year's event featured around 90 craft vendors and over 100 exhibition booths.

Patrons enjoyed shopping for handcrafted items, eating the local cuisine - lobster rolls and strawberry shortcake - and, of course, admiring eye-catching art.
